SMITH PARIS, ME., FRIDAY.

urges very strongly, is that every teacher do all in her power to hasten the day when the writing of compositions shall have ceased to be such a burden to scholars, but shall rather be a source of enjoyment. When a child is taught to express his thoughts on paper as easily as he is taught to write, the first steps are being taken to secure this end.

It is really surprising to find how much more difficult most persons find it to express their thoughts on paper than to do so verbally. Some of our most brilliant, conversationalists begin their letters, "Dear friend, I now see myself," &c., and end (on the first page) "can't think of any more to write."

This grave fault causes common sense to groan in spirit, and prompts every energetic teacher to strive to reduce the burden of letter-writing to a pleasurable exercise, to be enjoyed as much as a conversation with the person sent friend. Much can be done to secure this end in the primary and grammar schools.

Many persons think that as a natural result of a young lady's becoming a teacher, she will grow stern, seclude herself, and, being continually in the presence of scholars, be almost deaf to the winds, and tell us that the true teacher must be happy, and that while imparting knowledge to her pupils she is all the time adding to her own.

I like to compare the teacher to a stalactite, a formation called the stalactite, which hangs from the ceiling of a cave, all I can know how the stalactite is formed by the water, holding lime in solution and dripping it from the ceiling of the cave, and that it constantly grows larger and larger, all the time accumulating material to form the stalactite. The scholar equals the teacher, and the teacher together, until at last they unite and form one massive column.

As may the teacher, while building up the mind of the scholar to the level of her own, still be growing intellectually, and even at last, when the mind of the scholar equals that of the teacher in rank, the growth need not stop, but the two grow up together, remembering that "how high they fly, they may climb, there is still an inaccessible."

These are only a few of many valuable suggestions prompted by common sense, which every teacher needs to follow these and many more, as this sense, aided by reason and judgment, is the only way to improve our common school system.

I think that I express the sentiment of my class when I say, that we do not mind the teacher, but we want to remedy some of the evils which common sense deplores, but, at the same time we will remember the words of the scholar, "how high they fly, they may climb, there is still an inaccessible."

"We have not wings, we cannot soar, but we have feet to see and climb, and we have eyes to see and feel. The cloudy summit of our time."

California Letter.

Livingstone, Merced Co., Cal.,

OXFORD CO. ADVERTISER.—In my last I told you it was getting dry. Now I can tell you we have had lots of rain, and with favorable weather will have a good crop, even if we do not get another sprinkle. I have been to Stanislaus County since I last wrote and have seen many more wild birds. I saw a hawk, looking for land, the one-half as good as well here as any I saw while away.

Roses are in full bloom now, and we have many more varieties here than in the east.

And so "Speckled Mountain" wants to know how the weather is up here, and Christmas we had between three and four hundred acres up, and it has been coming ever since then. Our latest crop is the best I ever saw.

We have a small patch of rye, fifty acres or so, so soon for hay that stands up even with the corn of the early sown wheat, for thirty years of the early sown wheat for three weeks or more, so cannot tell you how high it is.

And how would we plow with snow three feet deep? We should not attempt it, but rove around until we reached to a warmer climate. We spent the winter of '87 in the San Joaquin County, and got along very well if the winters are cold and the snow deep and dry, but we have a more a sleigh ride than in the future.

The ADVERTISER of March 27 just came, and of course we stopped to read it, and we found it very interesting, "rhymes," "Porter," your rhymes are getting to be world renowned, and I hope you will be able to write enough to make a stranger to money. We don't employ ourselves, only see it done, and the sleigh ride we can't have, so will have to do with the horse and sleigh horse. Perhaps you can't ride a horse.

O. P. Wakefield and Wm. Crews left for Friday for San Luis Obispo, and I hope they will be as good as represented, they will buy.

We had quite an earthquake the 3d of last month, and it was very strong, and felt them here on the plains, although they are so common on the coast.

Warm weather, or rather hot will soon be here, and then you Maine people will have the best of us. The first I spent in this valley (San Joaquin) I thought you should have a fair, I felt quite the hot so much, and I frequently said I'd much rather live in a cold climate, for with wood or coal one could keep warm, and I could see no way to get rid of the heat. The climate at the West does not vary much from the climate of the East, necessary for us to be here during the hot months. As I mean to write often I must not take too much room, so "Bon Soir."

Yours truly,
H. ROYCE.

DEAR M. Y.—Your news and interesting letter of Nov. 18th was received yesterday, also one from F. of the 14th, and I thought I should write you a letter. We were very glad to hear you were all well. You can hardly imagine the grand time we are having in Rome. The weather is just perfection and everyone seems to have recovered from the cholera scare, so there is much life and gaiety on the streets and in the Park. In fact I have seen no more of the cholera since the American party, even on Fifth Avenue than I see here, on a pleasant afternoon in the Pincio (park of Mt. Pincio) or on the Corso

EAST BROWNFIELD.

J. M. Adams has sold his pine timber (about 50,000 feet) to Mr. Gatchell of Baldwin, who will put it into the "Saco" as soon as the ice breaks up.

T. J. Allard's house caught fire early Sunday morning by a spark snatching from the stove, when the kitchen was unoccupied. Mr. A., corner of the barn, saw the fire through the window, rushed in and put it out before serious damage was done.

John Hawkins is sawing the logs from a pine tree which he says will yield 18,000 feet of boards. The tree grew on L. O. Wentworth's land, and was cut down by him in town.

The machine to handle the logs excepting Mr. H., and he broke his chain while running the logs.

Quite an excitement was created last week, Wednesday, by the sight of a runaway horse flashing by the houses on the main road. Every woman ran to the window and every man on the road swung his arm and frantically yelled "Whoa!" which they didn't yell until the horse had passed them, only to find out the poor beast still was moving. He was soon followed by the owner, James Bean, and J. R. Hill, who drove to Hiram (six miles away, starting) before finding the horse, in charge of a man who had presence of mind enough to stop him. Mr. Hill had to run the horse some distance for he found some one at every house waiting to inquire for the runaway, and tell him how he had been stopped.

The animal ran from E. B. Bean's store after breaking the hitching post off to the ground, but did not injure to himself or itself.

A special town meeting was held April 11th, to consider the subject of "Protesting in the Academy," in the Centre District. It was voted to pass over the article.

A Nevada friend and reader of the Advertiser, asks us whether in a letter a numeral should be expressed by figures or words. Will "C. L. H.," "Tramp," or some other correspondent give us an opinion and oblige.

BROWNIE.

Joseph Howard, a much esteemed citizen, died of apoplexy last Saturday morning at the age of 75 years.

The mumps are dying out. Arthur Howe has the last case.

C. B. Frost is repairing his old red school house for live in purposes.

E. L. Howe has started his saw mill.

HARRISBORO.

Concert by the Band of High School, last Tuesday evening, April 25th. All are invited.

We think it would be well for some of the temperance people in this village to make an example of some of the young men in town. We have a good law and it seems a great pity to allow such fellows to run at will, doing women and knocking down aged men.

We have missed it very much and shall be glad to get it again.

Geo. W. Towle has bought the co-operative store at Kezar Falls, and is opening it in his own name.

Tobias Stanley has come from Boston, on a visit with his bride.

BETHEL.

Mrs. W. O. Strong has returned home and thought it best to see her house on Spring street.

Dr. Hill has leased the Stiles house for ten years. His mother is to keep his house—his wife to sell her house.

Fred Clark has sold his house to T. Douglas, who will occupy it with her family. This season she will put up a new house. Mr. Clark has sold his barber shop and will move his family to Lynn, Mass. He intends to locate in Washington, D. C.

Rev. Mr. Hooper closed his two years' pastorate last Sabbath. He says the society have done everything they could for him and have met every objection to his return for a third year, even to raising his salary higher than he has received. The good wishes of the church and congregation will follow him to Conference, hoping for his return.

It is rumored that A. S. Chapman of the bridge will have a new town agency to sell rum in all its forms.

It is thought by some that S. D. Philbrook and Fred Clark ought to be put under bonds to keep the peace, as they are so near to each other, and so far as words are concerned. It is hoped that Fred will not hurt Sammy.

Coburn the shoemaker is to build him a new house, and he is now being hauled on to the spot. Ten-man Crosby does the work.

The mud in our streets is drying up, so they are quite passable.

The fifth entertainment in the Academy, which occurred last night, was a recital by Miss Rouché, a student of the Academy. The entertainment was the best ever given in Bethel. Miss Rouché has been in the past efforts here. The programme was excellent and finely given. Among other things, Miss Rouché gave Noyes' "The Fourth of July," and one or two Irish selections. Her singing was much enjoyed in the diocese—her mastery of the negro and Irish peculiarities of language being perfect. The "Fourth of July" was a grand success. l while I was speaking I heard a distressing sound at the other end of the room. It drove me nearly mad. I knew I could have made sure of reaching the other side of the room, but I was afraid of those men by the throat, with the certainty of crushing life out of him. I could have done so, even had such an opportunity been offered me. I had sealed my own fate.
